

CONNECTION AND CONVERGENCE: SECOND INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON JOINT USE LIBRARIES

ADELAIDE SOUTH AUSTRALIA
THURSDAY 3 – FRIDAY 4 NOVEMBER 2011

with optional tour of joint use libraries on Wednesday 2 November 2011

Following the first international conference on joint use libraries held in Manchester UK 19-21 June 2007, Auslib Conferences announces the second conference.

Where

Adelaide was founded in 1836. With a population now of 1.2 million, and a Mediterranean climate, it is the capital city of the State of South Australia. Consistently highly ranked within the top 100 of the world's most liveable cities, it provides access to tourist destinations such as the Australian Outback, Flinders Ranges, Ayers Rock, Kangaroo Island and the Great Ocean Road as well as to other Australian cities and New Zealand. For tourist information on Australia see www.australia.com and on Adelaide and South Australia see www.southaustralia.com.

With over 50 joint use libraries, South Australia has Australia's largest number. They include a variety in, or close to, metropolitan Adelaide.

Focus

Connection and Convergence will focus on the increasing numbers and varieties of joint use libraries and library colocations being developed around the world. A joint use library is a library in which two or more distinct library service providers serve their client groups, based on an agreement that specifies the relationship between the providers. Library colocations with nonlibrary but related agencies may raise issues of agreements, governance, funding, management, staffing, integration, marketing and evaluation similar to those which need to be considered in developing formal joint use libraries.

Structure and learning outcomes

The conference will comprise twenty papers, with a recorded and transcribed question and answer panel session of the day's speakers at the end of each day. The conference language will be English. Speakers from Finland, Spain, Sweden, UK, USA and Australia will cover issues such as

- visions and missions
- agreements
- governance
- funding
- management
- staffing
- integration
- information literacy
- collection policies
- user policies
- access policies
- technology and systems
- marketing
- evaluation
- advantages
- disadvantages
- what has worked
- what has not worked

All speakers have been requested to identify at least three learning outcomes from their joint use/colocation experience or research. These learning outcomes will be discussed during the panel sessions and aggregated in the conference proceedings.

Conference proceedings

The printed proceedings will be mailed to all delegates by 15 December 2011 as part of the registration fee. The proceedings will include full papers, transcripts of the panel sessions, and the conference learning outcomes. They will be a valuable ongoing reference for anyone currently involved in, or considering, a joint use library or colocation development.
